Resolve To Talk About Money In 2019

Hello,

Happy new year!

After a dramatic end to 2018, the economic outlook for 2019 is for continued volatility. Staying on track with a long-term investing strategy is the key to continuing to work towards achieving your long-term goals.

Another key is keeping the lines of communication open. Talking about money can be challenging, but it's important. Resolve to make 2019 the year you talk openly and honestly about your financial goals and plans for your future with family.

Let's work together on your financial plan this year, looking at the whole picture, and making any adjustments needed for new goals and new economic conditions. I'm looking forward to helping you have a happy and successful year, with the confidence that can come from knowing your money is working for you. Contact me, and we'll get the discussion started.

Please feel free to share these articles with your family and friends. They are excellent conversation starters.
